Comments: I am writing in regards to the testing of animals. I am hoping you can find an alternative form of testing, one that is not harmful to living creatures - humans or animals. All of these animals are loving beings that have feelings and a sense of pain just like humans, and would much rather go to homes where they can lead a happy life with companionship. Also, since a human body is not identical to an animal's, it is easy not to have feedback that is completely accurate.

Please help these animals, as they don't deserve to live their life in a laboratory, and find a new way for testing methods.

Thank you for your time.
